55   Plains Grassy Woodland

EVCGroupNo: 14 GroupName: Plains Grassy Woodlands or Forests

EVCSubGroupNo: 14.1   SubGroupName: Freely-draining   ☑ CCMA

EVCType: EVC

RegDescription: Plains Grassy Woodland was once widespread in the vicinity of the volcanic plains (VP/CVU/OP), in some areas growing in association with Plains Grassland. Due to a long history of grazing and clearing for agriculture the majority of this EVC has disappeared and that which is left is often severely degraded. Of the areas remaining on public land the largest is around the Upper Stoney Creek Reservoirs, mainly on land managed by Barwon Water though some occurs in the adjacent Brisbane Ranges National Park. Other areas include the Dolly Creek State Forest, Bannockburn and Inverleigh Commons and a very small patch in the Langi Ghiran State Park. There is great variation within these areas and it is likely that several different floristic communities exist. However, due to the paucity of sampling of intact remnants, distinctions at the floristic community level have not been made. All sites are virtually flat, altitudes range from 350 to 380m asl except in the Bannockburn and Inverleigh areas which are 90 to 100m asl and annual rainfall is approximately 650mm. Soils are generally fertile, most sites occurring on Tertiary sands and clays though soils of the Inverleigh Common are Aeolian sands and the Langi Ghiran State Park example is on granitic-outwash soils.

Tree density within the areas mapped varies from almost forest to very open woodland. Dominance within the overstorey varies with soil moisture which is related to the proportions of sand and clay within the soil. Fire and management history may also influence overstorey structure and species composition. Dominant species within this EVC may include Yellow Gum, Swamp Gum, Yellow Box or Manna Gum with Silver Banksia (tree form), Black She-oak, Blackwood and Black Wattle. There is no shrub layer apart from localised thickets of Hedge Wattle in the Bannockburn and Inverleigh areas. The ground layer is very species rich with a mixture of low ericoid shrubs, such as Peach Heath, Cranberry Heath and Honey-pots, and a diversity of lilies, forbs and grasses. Common species include Yellow Rush-lily, Milkmaids, Running Postman, Common Rice-flower, Creeping Bossiaea, Wiry Buttons, Scaly Buttons, Kidney-weed, Sundew, Spear-grasses, Wallaby-grasses, Reed Bent-grass, Weeping Grass and Kangaroo Grass (the latter often dominating). In some areas there are dense patches of Black-anther Flax-lily and Variable Sword-sedge.

Riverina Plains Grassy Woodland
Riverina Plains Grassy Woodland occurs on the western plains near Melton mainly on basalt plains in addition to some Quaternary colluvial deposits. Altitude ranges from 120-300m asl, rainfall is a low 500-550mm per annum. Riverina Plains Grassy Woodland is an open woodland of Grey Box with scattered stands of Buloke and Drooping Sheoak. Extant remnants have few if any shrubs, however it is thought that this community may have been of a shrubby nature prior to European settlement. Shrubs recorded include Gold-dust Wattle, Golden Wattle, Bacchus Marsh Sticky Wattle, Sweet Bursaria, Tree Violet, Drooping Cassinia and Turkey Bush. The grassy understorey is dominated by Wallaby-grasses and Spear Grasses including Common Wallaby-grass, Bristly Wallaby-grass, Stiped Wallaby-grass and Spear-grasses including Rough Spear-grass and Kneed Spear-grass. Other common grasses include Windmill Grass, Red-leg Grass, Common Wheat-grass and Grey Tussock-grass. Chenopods such as Nodding Saltbush, Wingless Bluebush and Ruby Saltbush are also common along with Kidney-weed, Black-anther Flax-lily and Small-leaved Clematis. The best remnants of Riverina Plains Grassy Woodland in the Midlands and Otways study area are on the Eynesbury Estate south of Melton on private land and not accessible to the public. Some remnants persist on roadsides in the Balliang area just outside the region.
